General Sherman Laid to Rest in St. Louis.

The Remains Escorted to Calvary Cemetery by an Immense Procession-The Last-Rites,

INTERRED WITH MILITARY HONORS Fr. Louis, Feb. 11.-The last taps have been sounded, the buglers have trumpeted a final farewell and William Tecumseh Sherman sleeps with his kindred. Only the fresh-covered earth on a mound in Calvary Cemetery tells the story that the last of that great triumvirate of American Generals, whose fame is as imperishable as the Nation itself, has been laid at rest between the helpmate who, until called away, smoothed and comforted his declining years, and "Little Willie," his idolized soldier laddie.

General Sherman's desire that his obsequies should be of a military character was obeyed to the most extreme particular. But, at the same time, it was found impossible to draw a hard and fast line that would prohibit the great mass of the people of the city inwhich he had spent so many years of his life and who at one time regarded him as its particular own from paying a last tribute of respect to his memory. So, edent in something almost without prece a strictly military funeral, two civic divisions were added to the procession and formed not the least impressive feature of the event.

In the business center of the city there were no outward manifestations of mourning beyond the flags at halfmast and an occasional picture of the dead man, with its border of crape, in a store window, but out in the residence district which was traversed by the procession, there was hardly residence, poor or rich, that did not exlubit some token of sorrow and respect. A very large proportion of both men and women wore a memorial badge of white silk, with a picture of the deceased General and the date, fastened to their breasts by an American eagle festooned in crape.

On the arrival of the train at the bridge at 8:50 a. m. a salute of seventeen guns was fired by a battery stationed on the levee, and a second salute was fired as the train was pulling into the Union depot. The crowds about the train both in East St. Louis and at the Union depot in the city were very large and were managed with great difficulty by the police. When the train had come to a standstill it was boarded by deputation of old comrades of Ransom Post, G. A. R., under the command of Commander H. L. Ripley, which, after relieving the guard, received the remains and mounted guard.

The funeral party was received at the train by Messrs. James E. Yeatman and Henry Hitchcock, friends of General Sherman's family, and a deputation of twenty-five citizens from the general reception committee. Most of the party remained on the train until the time set for the funeral, a deputation from Ransom post, under Commander H. L. Ripley, mounting guard over the body. At 10:80 o'clock the regulars, commanded by General Wesritt, march pot. The coffin was tenderly lifted by members of Ransom post and placed upon a caisson. Members of the family and the funeral escort were then ushered into carriages by the reception committee and fol-lowed the caisson to Twelfth and Pine streets, where the procession was in readiness. The pageant was made up

From beginning to end the procession was over three miles in length. And so the cortege slowly wended its way to Calvary. With perhaps the possible of Ulyases S. Grant, it was the most notable tribute to the memory of diminution in the unbroken line of spectators. It seemed as though twice the entire population of the city were on the streets; yet at no point was there either disorder or unseeming levity. Every thing was in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion. Minute guns were fired by the battery, church bells were tolled as the caisson passed by and the bands al-ternated the "Dead March in Saul"

with other dirges and the old familiar "Marching Through Georgia" to slow It was nearly 2 o'clock when the head of the column reached Calvary. An immense crowd had already passed through, but a large force of police had kept open the route to the grave and prevented intrusion upon the space required by the family. Outside the gates the cavalry and artillery deployed to the right and left. Gently the old veterans of the Thirteenth lifted the casket from the cais-son and tenderly, with slow and meas-ured tread, they bore it up the way of the First Dolor, through the Way of Bethany and to its crossing with the Holy Rosary. Here they laid it down upon a bier. Father, mother, son and babe were united in death. The bler had been placed directly in front of the grave of little Willie, who died at the age of 9 years, in 1803. To the right was the grave of Mrs. Sherman, surmounted by a handsome monument; to the left that of baby Charles, who died in South Bend, Ind., in 1864, before his first year of life had passed. The wind whistled through the lifeless branches of the trees, but every head was bared and bowed as Father Sherman stepped to the head of the casket. The fortitude of his sisters deserted them at this trying juncture, and they gave way feebly to their grief

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 21.-The train bearing the body of General Sherman reached here at 10 o'clock Friday At all the stations along the night. line of its journey through Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana Grand Army posts were drawn up in line on the plat forms, salutes were fired and church bells tolled as the train swept by. The reception at Richmond, the Indiana State line, was the finest that had been seen during the day. _ Under the roof of the great railroad station nealy 10,000 people were in waiting. As the train moved up the track the band played a dirge and the veterans, with uncovered heads, saluted. Behind them were ranged the Sons of Veterans and the Woman's Relief Corps. Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana, and Department Commander Stormcut, G. A. R., boarded the train at Richmond. They had come from Indianapolis to meet the funeral cortege at the border line of the State.

They were welcomed by General Schofield. Three volleys of musketry were fired as the train left the depot. All along the platform outside the covered station stood a dense crowd of people in the pouring rain. Thousands stood without umbrellas under the dripping skies, hat in Land, to see the funeral TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Feb. 21 .- At Indianapolis a delegation from Ransom

Post, G. A. R., of St. Louis, the post of which General Sherman was a member at the time of his death, boarded the train. It was composed of the four past senior commanders of the post. The train made no stop between Indianapolis and Greencastle where it arrived shortly after midnight. At Brazil as the train passed through a volley of musketry was fired by a line of vet-erans. In spite of the lateness of the hour of arrival the station here was well filled. Most of the cars were dark, as their occupants had retired to rest. The train stopped here only a few min-son, a patient at the Emergency hospi tal, upon whom the experiment of engrafting 144 square inches of human cuticle was performed Sunday, January 18, is dying. The self-sacrifice of 200 fellow Knights of St. Bernard Commandery, each of whom contributed his mite of skin, and the skill of Dr. Fenger and his assistants have availed him nothing. The experiment was apparently a success, the new skin seemed to have become part of the fiesh, but his system could not stand the demands made upon it and he is gradually wasting away. The different operations to which he has been subjected had necessitated the use of chloroform and other drugs to a large extent. His stom-ach was unequal to the demands made upon it, and since Sunday he has been able to take little nourishment of been able to take little nourishment or any kind. Since Sunday the patient has been unable to speak. He appar-ently has some consciousness of what is going on in the room, and many of his fellow-members think he has recognized them, but he has made no sign. He lies almost in a stupor and perfectly helpless.
